BUCERIUS SUMMER PROGRAMS

After four years of proven success with the Summer Program in International Business Law, starting in 2012, Bucerius will be offering a new Summer Program in Mediation. Both programs are taught in English and are open to law students and recent graduates from Germany and around the world.

BUCERIUS SUMMER PROGRAM IN INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS LAW

In today's globalized world, international business and the laws regulating it are no longer distinct disciplines. Having acknowledged the need to train legal professionals to face this development, Bucerius has been offering the Bucerius Summer Program in International Business Law since 2008. The aim of the program is to help participants meet the increasing demands of companies and law firms in the areas of international banking, trade law, commercial transactions and more. Interactive courses with distinguished academics and practitioners deepen participants' existing knowledge of these topics and increase their understanding of the many forces shaping the field today. This year's selection of seven courses varies from International Commercial Sales by Professor Dr. Franco Ferrari (New York University Law School, USA) to International Mergers and Acquisitions by Dr. Florian Drinhausen (Linklaters, Frankfurt). A course catalogue for 2012 is available online. From its inception, the program has been supported by Linklaters.

BUCERIUS SUMMER PROGRAM IN MEDIATION

For students with a strong interest in mediation, this highly interactive program is the perfect choice. Over the course of three weeks, students increase their understanding of mediation as an optional tool to solve business disputes. Experienced practitioners and academics explain recent findings and the theoretical background of the topics discussed. In addition, students work with professional mediators to hone their advocacy and problem-solving skills. The focus of the 2012 program is on "Business-to-Business (B2B) Mediation", which will be addressed through four mandatory courses. In addition to studying conflict management and advocacy skills, students will explore the legal framework as well as the psychological foundation of mediation. A course catalogue for 2012 is available online.

CREDITS

The course-credit system is based on the American Bar Association (ABA) guidelines, with one credit hour being equivalent to 700 minutes of classroom time. European students are able to earn ECTS points. All courses are worth one ABA credit, which is equivalent to two ECTS points.

GRADING AND TRANSCRIPTS

Depending on the course, your final grade may be evaluated through a class presentation or project, essay or take-home exam, or a final exam. In addition, regular attendance and active participation is required in all courses. At the end of the program, each participant obtains a certificate of participation and transcript of grades. It is at the student's home university's discretion as to whether the credits and grades earned at Bucerius will be recognized toward the student's degree program.

Alexander Rodney, Cambridge University, UK (Participant 2010)

"The program was an unforgettable experience: during our month in Hamburg we enjoyed intellectual stimulation, cultural diversity and some excellent company. In addition to the eminence of the professors, one of the program's key strengths is the breadth of the courses offered. There is no better environment for fostering comparative legal study than as part of an international community."

Encyeh Seyed Sadr, Lawyer, Iran (Participant 2011)

"The program was well scheduled in terms of courses and leisure events. The student body was so unique, giving me the opportunity to meet people from different countries and legal backgrounds and with different experience. I am happy that I could spend part of my summer on this program and hope that this advantage will be sought out by other students as well."
